

Rowing and sailing tenders

built by Ballentine's Boat Shop, Inc.

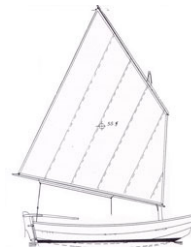

Ballentine's Boat Shop is expanding from building and maintaining classic wooden yachts to include the construction of high quality, attractive and versatile tenders. These sailing dinghies can be used as transportation to larger boats or as a fun small day boat. We have chosen 3 designs that we think live up to our criteria of a beautiful and functional dinghy. The 11'2" Shellback, a Joel White design, is a stable dinghy that can be effectively rowed, sailed or towed. The 13' Beach Pea Pod, designed by Doug Hylan, is an elegant lapstrake double ender. It easily pulls up on the beach for landing parties, and with the additional length, it can accommodate a little more crew or gear. The 9'6" Nutshell pram, also from Joel White, is related to the Shellback but it is shorter and without a pointed bow. Like the other two dinghies, it rows, sails and tows quite well, while offering stability in a more compact package.

Any of these dinghies would be great on cruises for exploring the more remote, shallow coves of your destination (or even your home port). Each is easily towed or stowed in davits.
